

Guidelines for Contributors to the Victorian Historical Journal

1. The Victorian Historical Journal publishes and reviews scholarly contributions to Australian history, especially the history of Victoria.
2. The submission of articles on Australian, and especially Victorian history, are invited.
3. Reviews are commissioned by the review editor(s). Suggestions of publications for review are welcome.
4. The Royal Historical Society of Victoria Inc does not pay for contributions to the Victorian Historical Journal.
5. Articles within the range of 4000-7000 words (including notes) are preferred.
6. The manuscript should be typed or printed in a minimum 12-point serif typeface on one side only of A4 pages, double or one-and-a-half line spaced (including indented quotations and endnotes), with margins of at least 3cm. A more detailed style guide will be forwarded on request.
7. References should be supplied as footnotes. Footnotes are not to exceed ten percent of the text, and they are to be devoted to the citation of sources only.
8. The title page should carry:
 - a. author's name and title(s);
 - b. postal address, telephone number, fax and email addresses where available;
 - c. word length of the article (including footnotes);
 - d. a brief biographical note on the author;
 - e. a brief abstract of no more than 100 words.
9. Suitable illustrations for articles are welcome, but initially send clear copies and not originals.
10. Titles should be concise. A subtitle can also be submitted. The editor reserves the right to alter the title in consultation with the author.
11. Send one hardcopy of your manuscript and an electronic copy, either on disk or preferably as an email attachment (.doc or .rtf file).
